

networked bodies

two people are constantly connected in sound. each person carries a wide range microphone, of which the input is wirelessly relayed and played back through bone induction to the second user. the actuator must be bitten down upon to be heard. only the two connected users can hear the relayed sound.

shared space

internal

on/off

